don't think he'll be up to it this year.

"Howie Krist got hurt in an auto accident just before spring training started. He's the best relief pitcher I ever had and if he can't help the team in the bullpen, they'll have to gamble—and you know what that means.

"The Cards are going to miss Johnny Hopp too. He's with me again in Boston, and am I happy. I'd hate to have to count the games he won for me with his bat.

"Pennants are won several ways, but one thing is sure—no team can afford to make a mistake in a close race and I think we're going to have the greatest competitive year baseball has ever known."

Mexican Loop Bids $100,000 for Feller

By The Associated Press

MEXICO CITY March 7 — Bobby Feller, Cleveland's ace pitcher and one of the highest paid twirlers in organized baseball at a reported $40,000 a season, has been offered $300,000 to jump to the Mexican league for a three-year period President Jorge Pasquel disclosed today. Feller would be paid $100,000 a season.

That is nothing, smiled the head of the so-called outlaw league. Next season he said he hopes to get Hank Greenberg and Ted Williams, slugging outfielders for the Detroit Tigers and Boston Red Sox respectively.

"I'm getting in touch with them right now," he told The Associated Press in an interview. He did not say how much he plans to offer Greenberg and Williams. Neither did he say if Feller had replied to his offer.

Major leaguers who reportedly already have jumped to the Mexican circuit include Danny Gardella and Nap Reyes of the New York Giants. Luis Olmo of the Brooklyn Dodgers and pitcher Alejandro Carrasquel of the Chicago White Sox.

Adolfo Luque, former Giant pitcher and coach will manage Puebal in the eight-team circuit.

"I believe we'll have Luque for life," Pasquel said. "But what we're paying him is a military secret."

Ohio's High Court Sidesteps Question of Tax-Exempt Dog

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O March 7—What's a hound dog worth when his owner has failed to pay taxes on him?

The supreme court in a decision yesterday specified no figure but declared a dog whether listed for taxation or not is a thing of value.

A Wayne county jury convicted Willard Weekly of grand larceny (theft of more than $35 value) for stealing Everett Etzwiler's red tick hound.

Weekly appealed the case claiming that since Etzwiler had not paid taxes on the dog it could not be considered of value.

The appellate court disagreed with his reasoning but reversed the conviction on grounds the jury had failed to specify a definite value for the animal.

The supreme court upheld the appellate court's decision as Weekly faces retrial.

Skate King Fears Famine in Winter Athletes

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

NEW YORK — Irving Jaffee only American ever to win three winter sports Olympic titles, fears a famine in United States skaters, skiers, and other ice and snow performers when international competition returns to the headlines in 1948.

Rated the greatest long-distance skater of all time, Irving has a right to speak his mind about his sport. He has been much concerned with the art of flying over the ice for 20 years, in fact ever since he was 13 years old so let's hit an ear in his direction.

"The fans don't realize it," says Irving, "but we have lost practically all of our top winter stars. The skiers and the skaters were the first to go when war hit us. And we haven't developed any new ones in four years."

"Remember when practically every small town in the snow country held ice carnivals? There was a tremendous craze for winter sports. Well since 1942 they've all been forgotten. Equipment is all shot and it's impossible to get new skates, skis etc. because of steel, lumber and leather shortages.

IRVING JAFFEE
Skate King in His Prime

"When you stop to think about it, though, it's amazing that we won the last Olympic winter crown. Americans have never been considered authorities on the blades and skates. It was a case of the pupils being better than the teachers — Norwegians and Finns—in 1936.

"It's been a long time since our great athletes had a chance to compete against others all over the world, and many of them have been lost in the war effort. We'll see a lot of new faces. But the same probably will be true of other countries."

Jaffee served three and one-half years in the Coast Guard and he came out of service about 20 pounds heavier.

"Of course my competitive days are over," he smiles, "but I've written so many stories, made so many movies and broadcasts on skating that I can't think of anything else. All I hope is that I can help more of our boys and girls become champs on the ice."

For the record, Irving won his first Olympic title when he was 19. He fell in love with skating long before that, however, and he often tells about how he sold newspapers to buy his first pair of steel runners and swept the ice on local rinks to earn his admission to them.

"Most skaters reach their maturity when they are around 30," smiles Jaffee "and I'm 33. No matter how you skate, it all depends on your leg muscles. When they say there isn't anything you can do about it."

Tickets were distributed by Miss LaVern Lash for a chili supper planned by the club for Tuesday, March 19 at the Y. It was announced the supper will be served from 5:30 p. m. to 7, and proceeds will go toward a civic project to be aided by the club. LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

"I'M so sorry, Olga," I told Phillip Veritzen's wife. "But I can't possibly make any engagement for dinner, I may not be here at that time."

"Oh!" I heard the quick catch of her breath. "I understand. But I'll make it luncheon, at any hour you name, although I should like to have it as late as possible. You'll have to take what you call 'pan luck'—is that right?"

"'Pot luck,'" I corrected automatically, then laughed.

"You are incorrigible, Olga, making me correct you," I told her, "but—luncheon—perhaps that might be managed. Would two o'clock be all right?"

"Perfect," she replied. "And I want all of your family, of course—Madam Graham, you, Dicky, Faith and the boys. I already have asked Noel and Mary, and I want to call up Katharine and her husband as soon as I get through talking to you."

"I can't answer for them, of course," I told her. "You will have to talk to them yourself. But I am sure all of our family will be glad to come to you for luncheon."

"Thank you, dear Madge," she said. "It means a very great deal to me, your coming."

Olga Hesitates

She hesitated, and I had the impression that she wished to say something more to me but was waiting until some other person was out of hearing.

Then I heard her voice again, low and urgent.

"Madge! Would it be possible for me to see you right away outside your door? I won't keep you but a minute."

"Yes," I said, "but not outside my door. Come to the apartment of the boys instead." I gave her the number. "I will be waiting for you there with the door ajar."

"Bless you, dear friend!" she said fervently. "Goodbye."

I hung up the receiver and turned to find the boys looking at me with twinkling eyes.

Easy Blackmail

"This looks to me like easy blackmail, Rod," my son said. "How much will you give us, Mums, to clear out instantly and make no noise?"

"The price of two soft drinks, two sandwiches and two dishes of ice cream," I told them, laughing, and reaching for my purse. "But don't delay your going, and telephone me here when you've finished your snack."

They barely had gone—I stood in the doorway watching them—before the down elevator stopped at our floor and I stepped inside my doorway, holding the door slightly ajar.

The next instant, through the crack, I saw Olga coming slowly along the corridor. I swung open the door, and called softly: "Olga!"

Hurried Through the Door

Her face lit up as she saw me, and she hurried through the door I held open for her, putting her arms about me in a warm embrace as soon as the door closed.

"No, I mustn't sit down," she said, as I drew her toward a chair. "Philip has promised to keep Olina occupied in the library while I am gone so she will not suspect my absence. But I felt that I must see you, and tell you what is behind my insistence upon your family joining ours for a meal today."

"You ought to know that you need explain nothing whatever to me, Olga," I said. "I take you always on faith."

"I know that, dear one," she said, "and the knowledge is very sweet to me. But this doesn't affect you. It is Mary whom I wish to protect."

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDENSEN, M.D.

Hypertension

SINCE the average life span in the United States is increasing, more persons it would seem, have a chance of developing hypertension, because hypertension is more common in the middle-aged and elderly than in young persons. When the blood pressure is taken the doctor determines the pressure when the heart contracts, which is known as the systolic, and the pressure when the heart is the relaxed is known as the diastolic pressure.

According to Dr. Reginald H. Smithwick of Boston, a persistent rise in the diastolic pressure is due to increased resistance to the flow of the blood through the tiny arteries. This resistance to the flow of the blood through the arteries is due to changes in the arteries themselves, as well as to some contraction of the arteries brought about by the muscles in their walls.

These muscles are controlled by the nerves of the sympathetic or involuntary nervous system. This contraction of the muscles in the blood vessel walls may be brought about in the patient with high blood pressure by pain, emotional upsets, by changing the position of the body, and by exposure to cold.

At the beginning of this type of high blood pressure, the rise in pressure may appear only from time to time. However, sooner or later, the blood pressure remains elevated even though the patient is lying down.

In an effort to relieve hypertension, operations on the sympathetic nervous system have been carried out. One hundred and fifty-six patients with high blood pressure have been operated on at the Massachusetts General hospital and observed for a period of from one to five years following the operation. A lowering in the diastolic blood pressure of from 10 to 30 millimeters of mercury was noted in eight out of every ten patients in whom the diastolic pressure before operation was from 100 to 162.

It was found that women did better than men. There was also some improvement in the condition of the heart and in the action of the kidneys. The patients also seemed to feel better following the operation.

The operation consisted in removing certain sections of the involuntary nervous system, namely, the nerves known as the great splanchnic nerves and the trunks of the nerves along the spine.

Thus it would seem that in certain types of high blood pressure this operation on the nervous system may be of some value, when other measures fail to bring relief.

C. OF C. BOARD ACTS ON HOSPITAL PLAN

Action Taken To Urge State To Build Institution Here.

Chamber of Commerce directors, at a meeting in Hotel Harding Wednesday voted to encourage the executive committee to continue cooperation with Gov. Frank Lausche and State Welfare Director Frazier Reams in the establishment of a permanent state hospital for the mentally ill in the Scioto Ordnance Plant area.

In a letter to Louis E. Michel, secretary of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Reams recently affirmed that the welfare department had plans to take over the administration area buildings at the Scioto plant site as a temporary hospital to relieve a crowded condition in its present buildings. The letter added that it was the intention of the department to seek the purchase of another tract north of the administration area which would give it a total of more than 1,200 acres of land for a permanent installation. No new developments in the project have arisen since the Ream's letter was received.

Also during their meeting directors resolved that an application should be made for an associate membership in the national association of Better Business Bureaus. The application now is being prepared and will be sent to national headquarters. John Gillis is chairman of the Chamber's better business committee.

Urges Prompt Action on Personal Taxes

Unless there is a marked increase in the number of personal property tax returns filed within the next couple of weeks, taxpayers will have to stand in line to get their returns in before the deadline, County Auditor Harry V. Mounts said today.

Only 536 of the approximately 3,300 returns have been filed so far, the county auditor pointed out. Deadline for filing returns is March 31. Half of the tax must be paid at the time returns are filed and the balance is due Sept. 20.

The tax forms, mailed to county tax payers on Feb. 18, call for payment of all personal taxable property for 1946, including tangible and intangible property.

Twin Brothers Are Veteran Engineers

By International News Service

BOSTON — Two 74-year-old twin brothers have been engineemen for the Boston and Maine railroad for 50 years. Both pilot the same type of freight engine, both have the same initials and both are widowers.

Here, however, the similarity stops, for their interests are completely different and they live different lives, meeting once a year for a birthday celebration.

The twins, Charles Elmer, and Chester Eugene Lord, were born in West Boylston, Mass. Charles entered railroading at the age of 18, his brother starting a year and two months later.

Chester Lord is the senior engineman on the southern district of the New Hampshire while his brother is senior man on the Fitchburg division.

Mr. Churchill's Old Story

WINSTON CHURCHILL'S speech at Fulton, Mo., is getting more attention than the speaker could have expected when he wrote the speech.

Events of the last few days have combined to turn a blinding spotlight on the former prime minister's blunt belief that Great Britain and the United States must stay with Russia if possible, but in any event must stay together. It is suddenly becoming clear to Americans that Russian friendship is neither to be had for the asking nor the appeasing; that Communism respects no rights it can destroy; that the direction Russia is taking must lead inevitably to conflict over the issue of aggression.

These are the things Mr. Churchill has chosen to talk about on his trip to Fulton with President Truman. From his point of view, there was nothing new about them; he was talking about them in Britain before the war when he was a voice in the wilderness of British politics. He was alert then as he is now to dangers of all kinds of dictatorship. He warned against the encroachments of Hitlerism and despised Mussolini, but he warned also against the encroachments of Communism. Mr. Churchill was not taken in by the label on the dictatorship bottle. He analyzed its contents.

Again, he is a voice in the wilderness of British politics. It may be claimed but cannot be proved that he reflects the attitude of Britain's Labor government in his plea for alliance between Britain and the United States. He is, after all, only the leader of the opposition at home, not a spokesman for the government party. Tremendous tides are running in British politics, as they are running in American policies. But when Mr. Churchill sees Britain and American standing together for common principles, he is not thinking so much of politics as principles.

Every chance should be given to the United Nations Organization to reconcile clashes between the aims of sovereign governments, he believes. War is not inevitable, nor is it imminent. But if Russia persists in behaving like a proselyte instead of a tolerant neighbor, there must be a clash sooner or later. The clash should find the United States and Great Britain together. That is Mr. Churchill's thesis.

Critics will charge that Mr. Churchill is arguing for the money subsidy which this government proposes to grant the British. They will argue that the United States is being invited to pull British chestnuts from the fire. They will say that we are being dragged into the complications of holding together the sagging British empire. They will accuse Mr. Churchill of hostility to Russia and of a plot to entice the United States into balance-of-power politics. And the critics will be right.

Mr. Churchill's realism is obvious. Nothing is hidden. Nothing is new. The only new fact on the horizon of international relations is that the United States is about to experiment with realism itself. In the course of the experiment, it is going to try to do something more tangible about its security than adoption of resolutions and continuation of its support for UNO, which can succeed only if the threats driving the United States and Britain together are withdrawn.

Is Ax-Grinding a Public Crime?

DISCUSSION of the St. Lawrence seaway project has been cursed from the beginning by name-calling. Both sides have been guilty.

The rest of us, caught in a cross-fire of invective, have ample reason to wonder if it might not be a good idea to let the combatants cool off until they know how to behave.

This is a project to change the economic patterns of a number of communities and areas in the United States. Those who are backing it most aggressively all have separate axes to grind. Each of them sees a concrete advantage if the project carries through. There are potentially billions of dollars at stake.

Yet, these same ax-grinding interests, whenever they are confronted by the spokesmen for other ax-grinding interests who like the economic patterns just the way they are, invariably scream, "Foul!" and beseech the public for a fair decision. They accuse the opposition of being narrow and selfish. They charge that its methods are underhanded, vicious and contrary to the public interest.

The St. Lawrence project would be a lot easier to follow with a modicum of sympathetic interest if the people who believe in it would spend less time trying to make the public believe that ax-grinding is a public crime only when the other fellow does it. Gentlemen, your own axes are showing.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Business Tells Same Story of Control Confusion.

CHARLESTON, S. C., March 7—I have concluded a five weeks trip touching closely half a dozen southeastern cities in which I talked with 300 business people and found everywhere the same story, to wit:

Business affairs are in a low, confusing maze, or as most men described them "a hell of a mess," (using the term not as an expletive but in its most accurate sense.)

Unanimously, these people blamed their troubles on government interferences. The rules and regulations of OPA and other government agencies, they said, were the primary cause, and strikes and labor unrest, including slowdowns and disinclination of workers to produce, were secondary elements. But they attributed the labor condition to government mismanagement as well as the regulations, so they traced all their economic ills to the single source—government.

They seemed almost unanimous also in what they want done. Merchant, lawyer, builder, banker, broker and all the rest want the government to get out of the regulation business entirely, take the lid off, remove OPA restrictions, price controls, priorities, and let the forces in our economic system find their own free way.

Reasonable Argument

A reasonable argument for this course was presented. What the nation needs is production, they said. This, we are not getting. They tell stories of how price ceilings are holding back both the manufacture and circulation of goods and absolutely true tales of black markets earning fabulous figures beyond taxation in every city, town and at every cross roads. A representative number of these I have told in previous columns on my journeys. If the lid is removed we will get production swiftly, they say. A flurry of prices upward could be expected but this would gradually ease down, they contend, as competition is restored by free productive activity.

Unquestionably a wide popular surge for this course has arisen and soon will be evident in congress—where it could be carried into effect despite the wishes and plans of the new Truman-Bowles management. All congress would be required to do is to kill the war powers acts which will expire June 30 unless renewed. (Some business people wanted the acts killed by an open early vote to allow a few months of continued operations under wartime regulations as a preparatory period in which adjustments could be planned; and others said that if congress does temporarily renew the war powers of the President an early expiration date should be fixed, say perhaps in the fall for dropping the whole scheme.)

This I judge is practically the desire of the country, in complete contradiction of Washington plans and opinions.

I must confess I could not bring myself wholly to accept these conclusions. A more reasonable course would seem to me to be to work out a compromise between the government position and the yearnings of business—right now.

All Special Cases

Generalized, total action one way or another is not called for, in my opinion, because the condition is not alike in any two lines. In some industrial phases, where price ceilings are restraining production, the ceilings should be lifted to the point necessary to inspire production—but no further, until competition is restored, and then all price regulation should be entirely abandoned. If a great bulk of men's shorts are in storage and wholly absent from the retail trade because the price ceiling makes their sale unprofitable the ceiling should be lifted to the point necessary to get the goods out. If the lumber price in communities is so low that the black markets in the big cities absorb the supply, the OPA should break the local price or the black market, or both, and meet the situation. In short, each situation needs just adjustment immediately and this could be done by administrative action now. (For another not unrelated example, there is absolutely no reason why newsprint production in this country should be allowed to decline, as it is declining in the face of desperate need and increased Canadian production.

If Messrs. Truman and Bowles pitch into this maze or mess and straighten it out, removing the destructive nature of the controls, the objections to them would diminish and competition could be restored. We could get production and distribution that way also. If they do not, they are running a chance of losing their whole management of economic affairs.

Arms Alliance from U. S. View

By Walter Lippmann

WINSTON CHURCHILL believes that a settlement with the Soviet Union is possible only if we deal with her by uniting America with Britain to form a combined power throughout the world.

There is nothing, he says, that "our Russian friends and allies admire so much as strength, and there is nothing for which they have less respect than for military weakness." By combining our power we would, he argues, "possess so formidable a superiority as to impose effective deterrents" against "the indefinite expansion of their power and doctrines."

If we do this, this is to say, if we hold the Russians in check by presenting them with a combined Anglo-American front, the United Nations will have a chance to develop.

This is Mr. Churchill's thesis. If ever there was a man who had earned the right to be listened to with the utmost seriousness, it is Winston Churchill talking on the basic issues of war and peace. He will be listened to, and his speech may well mark the beginning of one of the great debates of modern times.

The speech itself will, however, be received in this country as an incomplete statement, in that Mr. Churchill did not examine the problem, as Americans are compelled to see it, of forming a united British - American front. That is an enormous problem, and it is not solved by dwelling exclusively on the Russian expansion.

Mr. Churchill has in fact stated only the reasons why such a combination would effectively reinforce the British position. But he has not examined the problem of American participation in the combination he advocates and, indeed, he avoided examining it.

Essence of Problem

The essence of the problem is in the obscure and complex relation between the British commonwealth and the British Empire. A close reading of Mr. Churchill's speech will show that he did not face this problem, and that he has assumed that Americans will somehow fall to face it.

Thus he points to our "permanent defense agreement with the Dominion of Canada" and proposes that the principle be "extended to all the British commonwealths with full reciprocity." There would be no difficulty about that: the United States could make permanent defense agreements with Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Eire.

But that is not what Mr. Churchill really had in mind in his speech. He wants the same principle extended to the United Kingdom and to the dependent empire which it governs.

Now the general principle of the Canadian agreement could be extended to the defense of the British Isles. The real problem, however, for America, and as regards British and American relations with Russia, is not concerned with the defense of the English-speaking commonwealths. It is not concerned with those British nations with whom we have "the joint inheritance . . . of Magna Carta, the Bill of Rights, the habeas corpus, trial by jury and the English common law."

The real problem is concerned with those countries, either under British rule or within the British sphere of influence, which are not English-speaking countries and do not have this joint inheritance of freedom. That is where the trouble and the danger are, and that is where the conflict with Russia is, in considerable part, though not exclusively, located.

Aggressive

It may be that the Soviets will become so aggressive that the American feeling about the empire will become a negligible consideration. But if we are still attempting to make a peace, and are not merely preparing for war, then these considerations cannot be neglected if there is to be a constructive development of Anglo-American relations.

As long as we are still trying to make peace, a united front in the empire would not only be unattractive to most Americans but would be regarded by many thoughtful Americans as an unwise and ineffective policy. For a united front in that part of the world could not be the kind of equal partnership that exists in our relations with Canada.

In the region from, say Malta to Hong Hong, the united front would be directed by Britain. No amount of consultation could overcome the fact that the initiative and the administration would be British, and that only the responsibility in case of trouble would be joint.

That is not a workable arrangement to propose to a people so deeply imbued as the American with the tradition and the conviction that empire is at best a necessary evil, to be liquidated as soon as possible.

But the difficulty is not only in persuading Americans to accept such an arrangement. There is a further difficulty, so it will seem to many in this country and particularly to those who have proved their friendship for Britain. It is the belief that a united front in the region of empire will weaken, not strengthen, the western world in the contest of influence with the Soviet Union. For in a united front against Russia in Asia, this country would be incapable of differentiating its own position from that of the European empires in Asia.

Their Connection

Yet it is precisely because the United States is neither a totalitarian state nor a colonial power that it can hope to retain an influence in keeping the Asiatic peoples in good relations with the western world.

The connection between the white man and the Asiatic peoples is very thin, indeed, and surely we must put high among our objectives that this connection shall not be broken. That is the inner reason why we have remained so persistently the friend of China, and that is why we cannot, why we dare not, in the interest of the civilization which Mr. Churchill is defending, lose our own identity in Asia by merging ourselves with the British Empire. As long as there remains any hope of peace, any hope that the contest with Russia is to be waged by influence and not by arms, we must maintain our separate influence.

Military Unity Desirable

To take this view of the empire is not to oppose—quite the contrary—a military agreement with the free nations of the British Commonwealth. Nor does it mean that the United States will not have to draw a line beyond which Russian expansion cannot be permitted to go. But it does mean that we shall not commit ourselves to holding the line of the status quo by making our military power the reserve of the British military power.

The line of the British imperial interest and the line of American vital interest are not to be regarded as identical. There is a margin of difference within which there is room for adjustment—for example, at the Dardanelles.

Moreover, it ought to be said—though this calls for greater elaboration as the discussion proceeds—that the deficiencies of British power cannot be made up entirely by the United States. London should not look only to Washington. The same is true of France. Paris should not look only to Washington. They should also look to each other, and they should ask themselves whether the position in which Britain and France find themselves does not call for a revival of the project of a Franco-British union.

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Saturday, March 7, 1936.

Farm leaders praised the "Ohio Plan" of soil benefit payments and predicted its possible general adoption in 1937 or 1938. The system, its supporters said, would pay on the basis of soil improvement rather than any crop withdrawal idea.

The Petroleum Miracle

By Raymond Moley

OUR newest columnist, Harold Ickes, told us, 'way back in the days when he was petroleum administrator, that the war was consuming so much oil that in 15 years we would be at the bottom of our national barrel. This made a big noise, and gloomy economists broke out in sad bellowing.

Now, however, comes a different story from the Committee on Petroleum Reserves of the American Petroleum Institute. Their report says that in 1939 our "estimated proved reserves" were 19 billion barrels and that at the end of the current year they will be almost 21 billion barrels. Thus, despite the inroads of the war, our known resources have increased 14 per cent.

A second surprising fact in the report is that wartime consumption was considerably less than was anticipated. In normal years, we consume 1.3 billion barrels. During the war we consumed an annual average of 1.54 billion barrels. Thus, the extra war demand in four years consumed only about a nine months' normal consumption.

In 1924, the statistician of the Bank of France solemnly told his country that the oil reserves of the United States would be gone in seven years and that those of the world would last only 40 years. Since then, we have almost doubled our annual consumption of oil. And in every year except 1945—the year of Mr. Ickes' direful prediction—we have increased our reserves.

The Committee on Petroleum Reserves points out that today's known oil can be recovered only over a period of many years and at very gradually declining annual rates. If all discoveries of new fields and all expansion of old fields were stopped now, we would, nevertheless, have enough for over 16 years. However, the exploration of tide lands will probably reveal along the Pacific Coast very large new supplies. It is an interesting fact that Mr. Truman has inadvertently provided the country with a valuable education in the importance of these possible resources by nominating Mr. Pauley. In that respect, the Pauley case is a net gain for the nation.

Thus, the worries suggested by Mr. Ickes about oil may be postponed for nearly a century.

Long before oilless days come to us, we shall have other sources of energy. Perhaps atomic power. Probably new forms of alcoholic derivatives. And always coal.

Dwight D. Eisenhower, General of the Army—"I venture to make a suggestion; why doesn't the president of every great university in the world teach his people to put people in my profession permanantly out of a job?"

Dr. Wilhelm Westphall, a leading German scientific writer—"Russian authorities have failed to find any German physicists capable of giving serious assistance in finding the secret of atomic bombs."

History of Old Glory

Soldiers who fought in the American revolution did not fight under the Stars and Stripes. According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, there was no official authorization for the national flag of the United States until 1779, so a miscellaneous assortment of flags issued by different states or donated by individuals were carried during the Revolutionary War.

Sale of Town

While millions of Americans are out for just a spot to "hang the hat," thousands of others in the nation are interested in buying a town. Jim Ogletree, Columbus, Ga., realtor, discovered recently.

Ogletree reported that he had scarcely any time for anything else but answering the telephone and opening telegrams, since he advertised that Hannan, Ala., was for sale.

The realtor finally closed the deal, convinced, he said, that "nearly everyone in the United States must want to buy a town." The buyer, he reported, was H. L. Bass, of Elberton, Ga., a bus operator, who got the whole "caboodle" for $6,500. The new owner reported he will set his son-in-law, Lt. H. M. Knight of the US Marine Corps as mayor and postmaster.

UNO and the Ice Skaters

IT NOW develops that if UNO takes Radio City's Center Theater for any part of its quarters it will have to take over an orchestra of 24 musicians, 92 figure skaters, 34 stagehands and six-ice attendants, all under contract to Sonja Henie to continue there for a year. We understand UNO is willing, if it can get Miss Henie.

The weekly payroll at the theater is $37,000. Mere peanut money for a world organization. The possession of an orchestra and 92 figure skaters is regarded as a barrier to UNO taking the place, but we can't see why. Careful study of all the doings at the UNO sessions so far has convinced us that something is lacking. It would be music. And it could be ice skaters.

There have been no figure skaters at any UNO meeting to date, although the boys have been on thin ice most of the time. Mrs. Roosevelt sallied forth on rollers a couple of times and we understand that Jim Byrnes wanted to appear on the skates and leap over six barrels, but the question arose as to whose barrels he would leap over.

Joe Stalin said Russian barrels were out positively. England's barrel policy was obscure.

Plenty of small nations had barrels but they were wearing them.

Mr. Byrnes felt that for him to zoom on skates and leap over the barrels would not only be entertaining but would provide at least 5 minutes when Bevin and Vishinsky could not argue.

Anyhow Russia finally exercised her veto power over figure skating (except Russian) and the idea got nowhere.

But in New York things might be different. There has always been ice skating in Center Theater. Skating is in the air there. If UNO meets there it may absorb the spirit of figure skating. It might put everybody in a frivolous mood if the delegates all appeared on skates.

Some beautiful ice ballet numbers might be the cause.

The 24 musicians could be used. There could be a medley of national anthems (Russia permitting the others) to open each session, followed by "Where Do We Go From Here?" The small nations might want "All I Want Is Sympathy" and the Toreador song could be played during the bull sessions. And from time to time such numbers as "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows," "It's Love That Makes The World Go Round," "Old Black Joe," "My Heart Belongs to Pravda," "The Runaround Song from Molotov" and Yalta's "Lapse of Memory Suite."

Cotton Corners

By Truman Twill

Dear Nephew: We had a real interesting afternoon that I want to tell you about. Elmer Aiken's younger boy, Fred, was a bomber pilot in England during the war and married one of the English girls whose pictures we've been seeing in the paper. They came home yesterday and this morning they walked over here. Fred wanted her to see some of the more interesting natives, I guess.

Her name is Lola and she does credit to England. As far as that's concerned, Fred does credit to the U. S. A., so it's a standoff. We it turned out that Fred can't get hold of a car he likes, and his father never owned one, so it was more natural than for me to offer them our car to inspect the surrounding territory? Except that as it turned out, your aunt and I were asked to go along as guides, and I am glad we did.

I was interested in this girl's reactions to something she never had seen before. She lives in one of those little English villages not much bigger than the settlement here at the Corners and she said that the country around here is a good deal like it is at home, but there was one difference. In fairness to her, she didn't mention this right away, but it came out afterward when we were having a bite to eat at the Aikens.

Lola couldn't understand why with such beautiful material to work with we didn't manage to make it look more like we appreciated what nature had given us. That's what I have been hammering at for years. She must be a pretty smart girl. For instance, she objected to all the clutter of roadside signs, most of them in bad repair and none of them anything to boast about. She said that with the exception of the big barns—bigger than any she ever saw—and some of the houses that seemed to belong to the landscape, it looked to her as if a lot of people were just living in temporary quarters.

She said that was the way the few towns she had a chance to see from the train looked to her, too. New York, of course, was something else, but then there is nothing like New York anywhere else in the world. Naturally, she had to put in a good word for our place, because I let say so myself I keep it looking its best, but her general sentiments were that the United States needs to do more open-air housekeeping, which is a darned good phrase and one I will steal for my own use. She admitted, incidentally, that England needs to do more housekeeping too, but thinks that outside the cities the job is being done better there.

I have taken a shine to this girl. Fred tells me he intends to go to school as soon as he can find a place to study some agriculture. Then he is going to take the load off his old man's shoulders. Elmer's still a good hand, but at 60 he is beginning to slow up. His other boys have no stomach for farming and the girl, who is smarter than Fred, is engaged to some fellow in Philadelphia. I will lay you 50 to one right now that in 10 years one of the tidiest farms in the county will have Aiken on the mailbox. Does me good to see a young couple getting off to a good start even if it took a war to get them together.

County engineers hope that the project will be completed in time for them to give the road a top dressing of fine stone and tar, a process known as "drag treatment," during the summer. When the road is completed it will be about six inches higher than at present. Drag treating the road will cost an additional $3,500, engineers estimate.

The project is the first large job of its kind this year, but engineers are working on plans to repair and resurface other county roads during their summer program.

Junior Red Cross Lays Stress On International Cooperation

International cooperation through international interests at an early age is one of the outstanding features of the peacetime features of the American Junior Red Cross, Mrs. J. H. Harmon, Junior Red Cross chairman, said today.

Children in Marion county are getting acquainted with children in other lands through the exchange of correspondence albums describing community activities, the chairman said.

In addition, Mrs. Harmon, pointed out, through their contributions to the National Children's Fund children of Marion have taken part in a national Junior Red Cross project for sending 30,000 cases of basic school and health supplies to children of Europe and the Philippines, as well as $64,000 tablets to fill a special request from Yugoslavia.

"We are very proud of the part our local Junior Red Cross members have had in the accomplishment of the Red Cross services," Mrs. Harmon states. During the enrollment drive in the fall a Red Cross film was shown and Junior Red Cross programs were given in many of the schools. Last year the local chapter had 100 per cent enrollment of the 29 schools in Marion county, 4997 from elementary schools and 3195 in High schools.

Contributions from County

A total of $454.13 was contributed to the National Children's Fund last year by the school children of Marion county.

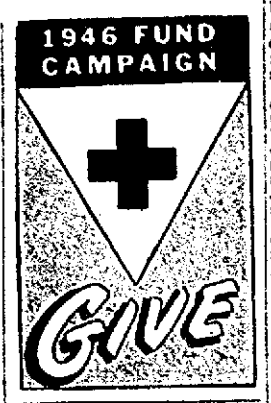
The Junior Red Cross filled 150 Educational Gift Boxes to be sent to children of the war torn countries. They made favors appropriate for the various holidays. Of these 750 were sent to the Veterans' Hospital at Dayton and 1432 were distributed to the City hospital and local community homes of Marion.

The local members devoted part of their time to collecting articles for men in service in camps and hospitals. Articles shipped included 136 games, 16 books, 207 coat hangers, 248 decks of playing cards, 185 puzzles, 124 joke books, 10 crossword puzzle books and 18 Scott's scrapbooks. Also 101 ash trays made by the boys in their Industrial Arts classes and 15 pairs of bedroom slippers made by Home Economics classes.

Conservation was stressed and the members took part in all salvage conservation work. Wax paper, tin cans and milkweed drives. Magazines were taken to the local canteen for distribution to the service men. Red Cross Courses in First Aid and Home Nursing have been conducted in our local High schools and the Junior Red Cross has assisted in the fund raising campaigns by packing and distributing campaign materials.

Mrs. Harmon states that the major emphasis of peacetime service of Junior Red Cross will be placed on all programs designed to improve international relations and to promote better citizenship. To strive through planned activities to make our junior members conscious of service to the community and better equipped young people for their lives as citizens of tomorrow.

The work of the Junior Red Cross is financed through contributions made annually to the National Red Cross Fund campaign now being held in Marion and communities throughout the nation.



Wesleyan Observes 104th Anniversary at Special Service

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, O., March 7 — Ohio Wesleyan observed its 104th anniversary of "Founders' Day" at special chapel services which opened the new March semester.

"I prefer to look on the present period as an era of better human relations rather than an 'atomic age,'" Dr. H. J. Burgstahler said in his "Founders' Day" message to the student body of over 1,500, largest Ohio Wesleyan enrollment in over a decade. This includes over 150 former students returned from military service who registered for the new semester.

"Education is one of our present day 'short' commodities—like cars and nylons—everybody wants it! Ohio Wesleyan has a long waiting list of students who want college educations," Dr. Burgstahler said. "However, we have to better understand how to use these college educations if we are to make this a period of better human relations," he concluded.

Breaking and Entering Trial To Start Friday

Trial of James W. Felts of Chicago who pleaded not guilty to a breaking and entering indictment at his arraignment before Common Pleas Judge Paul D. Smith Tuesday will open tomorrow.

The Chicago youth was indicted on a charge of breaking and entering a Marion rooming house Dec. 15 and taking about $30 in cash. After he made his not guilty plea and explained that he had no attorney to represent him, Judge Smith appointed Paul Simpson as his counsel.

Felts is the first of five persons entering not guilty pleas to indictments by the January term grand jury to stand trial.

Piles Are Never "Mild"

DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids) as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formation without tendency to heal themselves; instead, they are likely, if neglected to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting, predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as: indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its run-down tired feeling, and general nervous irritability.

Removal of piles is the only permanent relief—written guarantee. My method produces little or no discomfort, does not require the use of knife or drugs, and seldom is the patient required to lose any time from work or other duties.

Why not call and learn of this method? The examination is free.

PUPILS PARTICIPATE IN PRAYER SERVICE

Children in Grade School Take Part in Program.

Participation of public school pupils in the World Day of Prayer program, carried out this week in week-day religious education classes in the schools, constitutes a challenge to parents to match the children's receptive attitude, understanding and enthusiasm, teachers of the classes believe. Approximately 2,000 children, or 98 per cent of total grade school enrollment have taken part in this program this week.

With adult observance of the Day of Prayer set for tomorrow, the children's participation has served as a prelude to the event with services carried on in the various schools of the city throughout the week. Miss Lydia Ebel and Mrs. Maxine Stinchcomb are the teachers for the weekday religious education program in the schools. The prayer day services have been conducted in each building on the day of regular classes in the weekday program.

A theme of "Far Round the World Thy Children Sing Their Song," has been used to develop a World Day of Prayer program for children by the Connecticut Council of Church Women, member of the national United Council of Church Women with headquarters in New York City. The children take part in hymns, prayers and litanys, and locally have written original prayers especially for the occasion. In directing the children's thinking about children of other lands, the teachers have asked them questions which have revealed, Miss Ebel stated, that they are really conscious of the needs of other children of the world. As an example question and reply she cited an inquiry as to the children's opinion of what children in other lands, Argentina, for example, are thinking about, and the reply of the class was "Peace," with the children explaining that since we have peace in our country, the people of other countries are expecting us to help in bringing peace to all countries.

Appreciation of the Prayer day program for the children has been expressed by various grade school teachers, Miss Ebel said, with one principal remarking that it had impressed her much to see the response of the children to the reproduction of a church service in the middle of a busy day of teaching, "leaving them with the feeling that they have worshiped and have thought of the needs of other people."

The World Day of Prayer program tomorrow, for churches and congregations of Marion, will be held in Prospect Street Methodist church at 2 p. m. and is under the sponsorship of the Marion Council of Church Women.

Pauley's reply to some of the criticism against his selection for the Navy job came as new reports spread on Cap ol Hill that he would abandon his up hill fight for confirmation

Pauley's supporters summoned only minor witnesses for further testimony before the senate naval committee investigating his qualifications and this fact was interpreted widely as the prelude to a request for withdrawal of his name

However the California oil man told newsmen he was prepared to take the stand tomorrow to submit his rebuttal to contentions voiced by Ickes that Pauley tendered him the rawest proposition for raising Democratic campaign funds in 1944

Senator Tydings (D Md) called reporters attention to what he said had been Ickes statement on the stand yesterday that the former secretary of interior would not oppose Pauley for any office except the Navy one

Sailor Reverses The Atomic Bomb

By International News Service

PORTLAND, Ore.—A Portland sailor reversed the atomic bomb instead of wiping a city off the face of the earth he transformed Midway Island in the Pacific from a lonely barren waste into a paradise of trees, grass and 50 varieties of plants.

When the last gun was silenced and the Navy began to establish a permanent base at Midway, the commanding officer looked over the desolate scene with its glare and shifting sands.

He sent for Alan D. James, carpenter's mate first class, who he remembered had voluntarily landscaped the naval station while he was taking recruit training.

James was made head gardener and nurseryman with sand stabilization and camouflage as his No. 1 objective.

For the sailor, this was easy, because he worked on an Azalea farm and for florist before going into the Navy.

He studied the ground, compiled data, and sent for 50 varieties of plants, all of which are today flourishing in which was once only coral sand.

Rev. Dorsey Speaks On 'Uttermost Salvation'

"An Uttermost Salvation" was the subject last night of a sermon by Rev. John Dorsey of Winchester, O., who is conducting revival services at First Wesleyan Methodist church of which Rev. Dennis Matherlee is pastor. Mrs. Dorsey led a song service and presented a special vocal number.

Rev. Dorsey took for his Scripture lesson Hebrews 9:11-24 and 7:22-27. He declared:

"The modernists say that Jesus was a good teacher. Jesus got hold of God and hold of man on the middle cross and made the satisfactory atonement. Jesus, the son of God, reached with his hand of divinity and got hold of God, and with his hand of humanity he got hold of man, and the necessary reconciliation took place.

"There on the cross Jesus met the law and met the demands of blood for perfect atonement."

Feather Bed Makers, Here Is Your Man

By The Associated Press

FORT ATKINSON, Wis.—Ernie Hausen isn't even mildly concerned over the news that a wonderful new machine has been built to remove feathers from chickens five times faster than by hand.

Ernie is the world's champion chicken-picker. He can do the job with his hands in three and one-half seconds. He's 60 years old now and has been meeting all challengers for 20 years. He picks chickens by the hundreds just to keep in practice. He'll do it blindfolded or wearing handcuffs.

Hausen dips the chickens in 164-degree water, quickly runs his large, powerful fingers across the wings, from the tips inward; does the same with the legs, finally peels the feathers from the back and breast. Suddenly the bird is as bare as a billiard ball. It doesn't have to be singed.

He tells of picking 1,472 birds in seven hours and 45 minutes in a contest.

Memory Is Victim of Modern Tempo, Says Ohio Educator

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O.—Now if you forget to mail the wife's letter you can blame it on the tempo of modern life and think nothing much more of it—that is, if the wife doesn't find that letter in your pocket.

Dr. Arthur G. Bills, professor of psychology at the University of Cincinnati, says time has become so telescoped "and we have so many stimuli poked at us that the patterns of memory are broken up."

So even if the wife finds that letter, Dr. Bills has an excuse for you that may work—at least once. It is "retroactive inhibition," which can be an entirely commendable affliction.

The psychologist demonstrates the workings of retroactive inhibition by teaching a person something, allowing him to sleep for one hour, then having him recite it back. A second time part of the test involves the learning of something more, sleeping eight hours and then reciting it back.

In both these phases memory works equally well, proving that mere passage of time cannot be blamed for forgetfulness. However, when the same individual is required to remain awake for eight hours after learning his lesson, he forgets 40 per cent of it. Memory between learning and attempt "That proves that retroactive tempted recall," says Dr. Bills. inhibition is caused by the number of other things impressed upon the letter, sleep on it.

VON PAPEN PUTS IN CALL FOR MONARCH

By The Associated Press

NUERNBERG, March 7—Franz Von Papen the wily Gray Fox of Nazi diplomacy asked the international military tribunal today to question King Gustav V of Sweden to prove that Von Papen sought to bring peace to Europe in 1939 and 1940

The moon richa testimony was sought the tribunal was told by Rudolf Aman that defendant Von Papen asked him in 1934 to tell Adolf Hitler of the dangers in the Nazi anti Semitic policy and begged him in 1939 and 1940 to intervene to keep peace in Europe

(In Stockholm a foreign office spokesman said Von Papen lectured in Stockholm in 1939 before the Swedish German association but that he knew nothing of Von Papen's assertion that he asked the king to intervene for peace)

The court took under advisement Von Papen's plea for testimony from the Swedish king and also a request from former Foreign Minister Konstantin Von Neurath to call Lord Halifax British ambassador to the United States as a witness Von Neurath said Halifax a former British foreign secretary could testify that England at the end of 1937 was not opposed to union of Germany and Austria and he expressed this opinion to the defendants as well as to Hitler Info that year

The German diplomat also informed the tribunal that he intended to prove in his defense that he sought to institute peace overtures in 1942 Both with United States representatives in Turkey and the Vatican

The actual presentation of defense cases will begin tomorrow with the number one defendant Hermann Goering

GI British Marriages Okay, Says Cupid's Busiest Helper

By HELEN CAMP
Associated Press Writer

FOLKESTONE England — The man who claims the world's record for marrying couples is optimistic about the chances of British brides getting along with their GI husbands

Walter Grimaldi registrar of marriages for Folkestone has married 31 679 couples since November 1 1942— four months after I myself was married he adds His 10 300 marriages during the war he said included at least 3 000 to 4 000 American soldiers and the figures that gives him the world's record for marrying GIs overseas

If the men mean all they say so do the marriages will last he said I have much more thanks expressed to me by your countrymen than I ever have by mine But maybe you're just more polite

Your boys are good pickers too he added Especially from the physical point of view — the health point of view Nothing gets a man down as much as an invalid wife A young man likes the early years of his marriage to be full of vim and vigor

He declared he wasn't at all afraid of Anglo American marriages where the couples had known each other three or four years but he was a little disturbed when the girls said of their husbands I only met him on a train last week

If GI marriages break up it will be for one reason he said That is that they haven't had time to choose their partners If you were choosing a business partner you wouldn't pick him because you liked the color of his hair or the contours of his face or because he was charming Its the same way with marriage

Grimaldi pointed out that while 15 or 16 year olds were young here during the war they now were at a marrying age The greatest hope he sees for GI marriages is that the majority of them are based on a deeper affection as the result of sharing a great sorrow or a great adventure

"It goes back to the days of St George and the dragon he said— a woman seeing her man off and thinking he's the only man in the world

Grimaldi also is pleased that during the war he's married a Britisher to a member of every allied nation He also has performed the marriage ceremony for a dwarf a giant a deaf and blind couple a man with both legs amputated a deserter from the army with an armed guard waiting an escaped prisoner with a civil guard attending, and one man who went straightway and committed murder because he heard someone had been making love to his bride

And the ugly woman in a circus he added I've married her to two husbands That should prove that beauty is only skin deep

WE Strikers Still on Picket Lines

By The Associated Press

quarters of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co a few minutes before 6 a m today and were withdrawn quickly when word came from Washington that a settlement had been reached averting a nation wide telephone strike

Elmer F Reinker, president of the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers said the 7 000 members of his organization were pledged to honor picket lines scheduled to be set up by affiliates at 6 a m in front of Ohio Bell exchanges throughout the state

The Ohio Federation was not scheduled to be an active participant in the strike but was to honor picket lines of three affiliates—the Association of Communications Equipment Workers the Long Lines Federation of Telephone Workers and the Western Electric Sales Group

Reinker said he expected the settlement reached nationally would be made applicable to the Ohio Bell System and the Ohio Federation which is affiliated with the National Federation of Telephone Workers

Although it filed on March 1 a notice of intent to strike in 30 days the Ohio Federation has continued negotiations with Ohio Bell

In Cincinnati more than 100 placard bearing pickets paraded for 45 minutes around the downtown headquarters of the Cincinnati and Suburban Bell Telephone Co

James A Sigafoose president of the Cincinnati Federation of Telephone Workers said the pickets took up their stations at 6 a m since at that hour formal notice still was lacking that the strike had been called off Forty-five minutes later the notice was received and pickets were withdrawn he added

SOVIET TROOPS BAR IRAN FROM 3 TOWNS

By The Associated Press

TEHRAN, March 7 — Russia's intentions in northeastern Iran were clouded further today by an announcement the Red Army forces had prevented Iranian troops from moving into three towns which Soviet officials had said they were evacuating last Saturday

Announcement of the Red Army's action made by the Iranian war ministry came as Premier Ahmed Qavam Es Saltaneh prepared to return home from a mission to Moscow at which he formally protested Russian delay in quitting Iranian soil

The war ministry said a division of Iranian troops which left here in two columns Saturday and Sunday with instructions to occupy the towns of Samman Shahrud and Meshed had been halted by Russian forces 60 miles east of Tehran

The three towns named by the war ministry were specifically mentioned by Moscow last Friday in a statement declaring that Russian troops were being withdrawn from some areas which were more or less quiet

SPAIN CLAIMS SHE HELPED OUT ALLIES

By The Associated Press

LONDON March 7 — Spain, fighting back against the movement abroad for replacement of the Franco regime, maintained today that her government aided the Allied powers during the war by preventing axis domination of the Mediterranean North Africa North Africa and the Near East

Hitler planned to enter Spain Jan 10 1941 We say the intention of the two dictators to incorporate Spain into the Axis and so to dominate the Mediterranean and with it North Africa and the Near East, the Madrid radio said

The one who prevented the carrying out of the ambitious plans was neither Great Britain nor the United States of America The one who prevented it was Generalissimo Franco the broadcast declared

Spain did not want to enter and did not enter the war, in spite of all the coercion of the axis powers, with their troops on our frontiers ready to break in and march down on Gibraltar"

Yesterday's Spanish order barring all French nationals from Spain and her possessions a retaliatory step against the French action last week in closing the French Spanish border to commerce, was regarded calmly in Paris

Last night's Madrid broadcast telling letters between Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini, denied that Spain offered to enter the war on the Axis side as the U S Allied leaders, including Winston Churchill were quoted as acknowledging that the attitude of Spain contributed not a small part to the frustration of the plans of the Axis

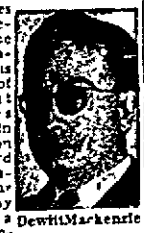
High Moral Code Paying Dividends for Switzerland

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP World Traveler

BERN, March 7—This snug little Switzerland whose territory for the most part stands on edge and towers into the clouds in the form of the Alps is one of the few countries of Europe having economic and financial stability in these hard post war days

That's an amazing circumstance because Switzerland is in the center of the continental chaos produced by the Hitlerian conflict. Of course, this gives rise to the remark that the country's relative prosperity is the reward of neutrality, but while there's some truth in that observation it doesn't afford a full explanation The war was a long way from being a period of sunshine and maintenance of economic stability in the midst of the present disorganization is like juggling on a high rope



DewittMackenzie

Neutrality has helped but I think we find the roots of success running deeper than that Thrift, honesty a high moral code and national unity are what have kept the Swiss on their feet

A good illustration of this is seen in the fact that there has been virtually no black market. The Swiss don't hold with making profit out of the distress of their fellows They believe rather in joint effort and mutual assistance, as witness the cooperation between capital and labor and the active participation of the whole country in making the rationing system work

Few Rich Few Poor

So things are looking bright in this land where there are few rich and few really poor but where yodeling on a mountain peak before breakfast is the prerogative of all classes Switzerland is comparatively wealthy and yet about its only natural resource is waterpower

The country is mainly dependent on imports including part of its food

The hard-working Swiss do the economic hat trick by the simple expedient of importing raw materials fabricating them and exporting enough of the unfinished products to maintain favorable trade balances abroad under normal circumstances Many of their exports are precision instruments like watches for which they've long been famous

There we have the backlog With this to keep the home fires burning the Swiss have other useful interests Nature took most of the farmlands to build her mountains, but still the natives model and work all the available ground Dairying is the main agricultural pursuit Wine is a valuable product.

Insurance Popular

Insurance business of all kinds is highly developed So is banking for Switzerland has money Being thus blessed she is granting credit abroad despite the fact that some experts are pessimistic about the political and economic situations in surrounding countries The Swiss bankers favor this because it gives them a chance to put their cash to work

However the biggest single asset rests in those Alps Switzerland long has been the winter playground of Europe and it has equal attractions for summer vacationists Before the war tourists gladly contributed $100 000 000 annually to the country's coffers and the Swiss now are making big plans not only to reclaim but to increase this lucrative business

Germans spent the most money here and now that their trade is lost the Swiss are looking to the western hemisphere for visitors A lot of Uncle Sam's soldiers in this part of the world have had an opportunity to visit Switzerland About 200 000 already have had a look at some of the globe's most magnificent scenery and more than a few have engaged in winter sports

The U S Army has been shipping in rations of coal and food to compensate for these military tourists because the country is short of both these necessities

Old Landmark Going

NEW YORK N Y —Spring will see one of this city's famous landmarks on the way out after weathering more than a half century of the swiftest and most radical changes ever known to any city

"I joined the SA in 1933 only because of my love for exercise, by joining, I also followed the advice of our family physician, Oberstabsarzt Dr. Gruendler (certificate included), who claimed that I was overweight. I was drawn to the SA more because of my enjoyment of sports and the pleasure of marching to the sound of drums and bugles, rather than the political aspect which was incidental.

"It was my love of nature, especially my affection for animals, that induced me to join the SA Reitercorps in 1934. I belonged to it for two years only.

"When I joined the NS-Kolonialbund in 1937, I did this only to express my feelings for the exotic, strange and rare things in the world.

"The fact that I am humane and have a very soft heart led me to join the NSV. (National Soicalist Welfare).

"That my wife, as a woman, joined the NS-Frauenscraft (Women's league) to take part in feminine activies, I am sure the higher American authorities will understand fully.

On Goes the List

"I was only a paying member of the SS and paid very small dues. The same goes for the NS-Kulturbund.

"Until the end I was able to stay out of the Wehrmacht which saved me from the worst fate: to be compelled to shoot at American soldiers—my liberators, the representatives of democracy. I can honestly say that that would have broken my heart.

"Still and all, in order to keep up my 4-F classification I had to help out the Gestapo once in a while, but that was only toward the end of 1944. This actually served its purpose. I was not drafted and, therefore, diminished the number of anti-democratic forces by one additional man.

"My true sentiments became evident in 1941 (this was already after the outbreak of the war). The utterances were made before witnesses in the restaurant Augustiner. We were discussing at our beer table who was going to be successor to Rudolf Hess. My answer was short and simple: "I don't give a damn." Anyone who had ears could recognize my true inner sentiments and my attitude towards National Soicalism. And today I still stand on the same grounds, being a man of strong character and convictions.

"It is because of the above mentioned reasons that I ask you kindly to reconsider my case and permit me to continue my wholesale grocery business at Munich 5, Buchholzstrasse 67/69. I would like to work willingly and with pleasure for the reconstruction of our beloved local economy and our sorely tried fatherland, yes, even for Europe and the whole world.

"With democratic greetings,

Respectfully,

(Signed) R. Haeutle, Southern German Maccaroni and Noodlewares Mfg. Co., Inc. Formerly Schmutterer & Sons."

DOVER MAN FINED $15

Martin Hausrath of Dover paid $15 and costs in municipal court Tuesday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of malicious destruction of property. He was arrested on complaint of Thomas A. Hill, also of Dover. Hill said that Hausrath, a contractor, had torn some of the siding off a building belonging to him when he had engaged a competitor of Hausrath's to do some construction work.

REPATRIATES JAM RUINS OF WARSAW

By The Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland—War-ruined Warsaw's population has increased 300 000 in the last four months, and the steady tide of humanity continues to sweep into the capital

The big influx of Polish repatriates from Soviet Russia and western European countries has given government officials a double-barreled headache They explain they had trouble enough trying to find shelter for the 400,000 people already in Warsaw, but now with 300 000 more, their job of finding housing facilities borders upon the impossible

Warsaw's pre-war population was 1,300 000 Officials believe that total again will be reached within six months if the present trend continues

It is the government's plan to send most of the repatriates into Poland's new western territories and thus give Warsaw a better chance to rebuild while simultaneously developing the lands acquired from Germany In the meantime, however, the government does have to try to find living space for the tens of thousands who have to stay in Warsaw for weeks or months before they move on

Barber Making Fine Violins as Avocation

By The United Press

PITTSBURGH—Jim Calabrese of Glenfield, Pa, makes a living shaving whiskers, but he enhances that living shaving curly maple into fine violins

For about a decade Jim known as the Barber of Glenfield has divided his work between the delicate tools with which he fashions violins and the tools of his trade—the razor and shaving mug

In that time he has made 31 violins, two of which he has sold Jim says he can hardly bear to part with one as violin-making has been his ambition as long as he can remember

But in America with six Calabrese children to feed and clothe violin making wasn't a profitable occupation So for 27 years Jim shelved his dream and concentrated on being a tonsorial artist

The last 10 years have seen its realization though and Jim is happy even though getting the materials he uses is a tedious and expensive proposition

Each violin takes about four to five months to complete and even then the finished product is sometimes disappointing but Jim says he'll keep on trying to make the 'perfect violin' The backs of his fiddles are curly maple, and the tops, spruce

Siberia is almost twice as large as continental United States

TO ALL MARION CITIZENS

On February 27th, a draft of Marion's proposed new and improved school program was outlined to a group of Marion citizens at the Central Junior High School Auditorium. The report of this meeting was carried in the Star under date of February 28th.

Last Monday night the plan was further discussed by the Executive Planning Group and an additional number of citizens. The purpose of this meeting was to check for possible further improvement.

The proposed plan in its present form is the result of the best thinking of two nationally recognized school housing authorities, the Board of Education and two Committees of the Civic Planning Group.

It is felt that the program is nowready to submit to ALL INTERESTED MARION CITIZENS. A meeting for this purpose will be held at the Central Junior High School Auditorium Monday evening, March 11, at 7:30 P. M.

The purpose of this meeting is to present and discuss the entire program with the view of arriving at the finest school program possible for Marion.

Almost everyone agrees that our present school buildings are hopelessly out of date, inadequate and in several locations actually unsafe. This being the case, we must do something about it if we are fair to our children and expect Marion to progress. Therefore, the only remaining answer is to devise the best possible school building program and put it over.

This is an all-Marion project. Marion Citizens are urged to attend and present their constructive criticism and suggestions at the meeting in Central Junior High Auditorium Monday evening, March 11th.

If a satisfactory conclusion is arrived at during the meeting, it will then be determined whether or not the final program is to be submitted to the voters on May 7th.

This is an important meeting. It involves the welfare of our children and Marion's future. Please attend.

FRAUD TRIAL TO RUN OVER TO NEXT WEEK

Attorneys Argue Point in Absence of Jury.

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, March 7—Indications were today that the trial of George T. Currier of Columbus, indicted on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, would continue into next week in the Wyandot county common pleas court.

Attorneys for the state and for the defense were arguing a technical point in the testimony today before the court in the absence of the jury. The jury was expected to be called back into the court room late today.

Character witnesses for the defense testified during Wednesday afternoon's session. They included Herman J. Engler, Edward W. Miller, Harold C. Gockenbach, Oscar F. Miller and William W. Wheaton, all of Bexley and Curtis C. Guthrie of Columbus.

Continuing their testimony Wednesday afternoon were state's witnesses F. L. Vesey and A. E. Sheehy of the building and loan division of Ohio, examiners of accounts of the Fidelity Building Loan and Savings Co. of Columbus.

Currier is charged with making false statements in order to purchase stock in the Fidelity company from Carey residents for less than its true value.

CRASHES PICKET LINE WITH SHOTGUN. Lawrence Squires (above), 29-year-old war veteran, was charged with felonious assault and held under $500 bond after police asserted he had fought his way through a picket line at the Michigan Wheel Co. plant at Grand Rapids, Mich., with the butt of a shotgun. "OSCARS" DUE TONIGHT

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, March 7—The news the whole world is waiting for—well, anyway that portion of it you can hit by throwing a rock from Hollywood boulevard to Vine street—will be disclosed tonight when "Oscars" for preeminence in moviemaking's various categories will be awarded at a starched shirt and low-necked affair at Grauman's Chinese theater.

Two in Same Family Involved in Mishaps

Wednesday was an unlucky day for the Smith family of 481 Scranton avenue, both William F. Smith, 59, and his son Oliver F., 22, being involved in automobile accidents within less than two hours. Neither of the accidents resulted in injuries or serious property damage.

The younger Smith's car, police said, collided with a car driven by Bertha Siffler of near Marion at Farming and Park streets at 5:10 p. m. The other accident occurred at 6:40 p. m. when William F. Smith and Herbert Phillips, 21, of 701 Wood street tried to pass each other on Bennett street. Cars parked opposite each other made the passageway too narrow, police said, causing a collision.

BUILDING COSTS HIT 25-YEAR HIGH

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 7—The commerce department reported yesterday construction costs and prices of construction materials had at the start of this year reached their highest levels in a quarter of a century.

A report by the department's construction division included these observations:

Steel—Sheet and strip, scarcest of all steel shapes, to continue in short supply through the first half of 1946.

Lumber—Both mill and distributors' stocks at a record low because of excess of demand over supply.

Mill work—Unfilled orders far exceed production which is hampered by shortages of manpower and materials

Hardwood flooring — Unfilled orders in producers' hands equal to six to ten months' output at the present rate.

Brick (common and face)—Demand represents about 3½ months' production at the present rate. Stocks at beginning of 1946 were at record low and were only 15 per cent of normal.

Structural clay tile—Stocks, after progressive decline since 1941, down to record low, or 12 per cent of normal.

Concrete building blocks—Unfilled orders more than double current production rate, but 1946 requirements can be met if sufficient manpower is available.

Ships Bear Names Of Ohio Cities, Counties

Thirty-three ships of the U. S. Navy which played a leading part in defeating the enemy on the sea in World War II were named for cities, counties and rivers in Ohio, according to a report released recently.

Among these was one named for a city from this area and three for counties. They were the Bucyrus Victory and Richland, two cargo ships, and the Wyandot and Union, two attack cargo ships.

Also included in this cruiser force were the heavies USS Columbus and Toledo, and the light cruisers Cincinnati, Cleveland, Youngstown, and Dayton. The Cleveland and Cincinnati operated in both the Atlantic and Pacific during the war. The latter was at Trinidad when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. The Dayton participated in the first attacks on the Japanese mainland and served as support vessel during the last months of the war against Japan. The attack transports and the attack cargo ships turned to "Magic Carpet" duty following the war, to return veterans to the States.

Air service gets better once you reach Karachi. Instead of tin seats you can relax on soft cushions, there are good hotels at each way station and they pump food into you as if you were just out of Buchenwald. You find yourself eating more than you should because of boredom. The scenery is too monotonous to hold your interest long — only patterns of palm trees and irrigatin ditches stand out in dreary miles of yellow sand and bare, dull docks.

Misses Two Trees

We stopped overnight at Basra on the Shatt Al Arab, date capital of the world. Iraq has 30 million date palm trees and I think we flew over all but two of them.

We flew and flew over Mesopotamia, which is a valley between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. Most history books agree it is "the cradle of civilization," the first place man climbed down out of trees—date trees I suppose—and began walking around on his hind legs and making wars.

All I can say is, it must have been a dusty cradle.

Air tourists don't have much fun. You can't stop when you want to carve your initials, and when somebody says "Nineveh is over there!" all you see is a dot on the horizon which might just as well be Dubuque or a tired mosque or lame camel.

But when they told us we soon would come to the river Jordan I got excited. After all, it was where the Lord was baptized. I expected to see something like the Mississippi, magnificently wide by crystal clear.

"There it is," called a crew member.

I looked down and there was a narrow, dejected little stream of water wandering back and forth as undecided as a woman in a department store. I believe you could almost jump it on a pogo stick. I haven't been so let down since I learned Santa Claus shaved. All that history wrapped around such a small holy trickle.

Jericho Is Gone

Then a British major next to me pointed over to the hills and said that was where Jericho used to be, where some long ago Harry James blew down the walls. All that is left is the hills and a new Jericho. Everybody in the plane got in an argument over who blew the trumpet. I never saw so many poor Bible students.

While we were still arguing, we landed on the Dead Sea and had lunch in a health resort at Kallia. I was going swimming in the Dead sea until somebody told me fish couldn't live in it so I gave up the idea on the grounds that if it wasn't good enough for the fish it wasn't good enough for an Irishman.

Just at dusk we plunked down in the Nile—and there's a river worth seeing, even without Cleopatra. I caught one glimpse of the pyramids, and tomorrow, if inflation hasn't run their price up, I'll buy you a nice stuffed mummy for a souvenir so you'll have somebody to talk to at breakfast while I'm reading the newspaper.

Your loving husband,
Harold Vercingetorix Boyle.

City's No. 1 Gourmet Is Hospital Problem

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Arthur H. Deute is back in his well-ordered kitchen—and the diet department at Mercy hospital is back to normalcy.

Shortages of meat, fats and sugar have given the hospital dietitian many a headache. But nothing like Deute, who is Baltimore's No. 1 gourmet.

Miss Mary Reinhart, the hospital's dietitian, said the usual way of handling patients with fancy food ideas was a complete failure with Deute. The usual method, she explained, was to say:

"O.K. Can you tell me how to cook this dish you're talking about?"

The answer was usually a sheepish "no," but Deute would give the complete recipe right down to the last pinch of salt, the last degree of oven temperature.

The kitchen bowed in defeat and produced, somehow, eggs with white wine sauce, tongue and horseradish mousse, molded salads with intricate garnishes, dry red wine for the meals and a proper glass to drink it from.

Deute thinks his ideas brought necessary improvements in the hospital diet.

"Hospital cooking," he groaned, "is like a girl with a beautiful soul. The soul is quite commendable but it won't get her very far with the guys."

3-Cornered Flags Provided for Ship

By The Associated Press

PEARL HARBOR — "Homeward-bound" pennants vary in size. The old tradition is that each foot of bunting represents one of the ship's members. A blue star in a field of white, flown from the top of a mast, represents an officer aboard. In ships where the number of the crew is large, several pannants may be flown.

The USS Dickman recently went home. . . . Sea-dogs of old may have winced had they seen her three-cornered "flags" fluttering in the breeze, but Capt. F. A. Leamy and his men took it all in stride.

The Dickman even took a heavy squall in stride—not the squall signifying a tropical storm but the squall made by 16 babies.

Carrying 1,828 military personnel and 600 civilian passengers, the Dickman found many of the women had babies in the diperable age. The officers and men collected 1,600 diapers for free distribution to the mothers.

No one asked how so many had been collected. The Navy simply proved itself equal to a crisis unique in naval history. It was estimated that because of the lack of washing facilities for diapers, 1,000 would be needed.

So, when Dickman headed for home proudly flying in the place of the usual colorful buntings, a pennant of 16 freshly laundered diapers.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Jess Turner's labor troubles

For four years Jess Turner ran his harness shop alone. But now his nephew's discharged from the Navy and is back to help him.

Right away, it seems that nephew Delbert has some new ideas. He wants more money, shorter hours—and meanwhile Jess' expenses have been going up!

So what does Jess do? He invites Delbert to sit down over a friendly glass of beer and talk the situation over. Jess figures how he can give Delbert some extra dollars, and certain interests in the business; and Delbert figures how he can speed up production on harnesses—and do some saddle work, besides. And they seal the bargain with another friendly glass of beer.

Of course, all labor troubles aren't so simple. But from where I sit, if there could be more friendly discussion — more give and take — more tolerance and understanding —both sides would be a heap better off.

British War Bride Is Reunited With Harpster Husband

Mrs. Bessie Borg, British wife of Carl Borg of Harpster, an ex-serviceman, was reunited with her husband Monday when she arrived in Fostoria and was met there by him. This meeting followed a separation of almost seven months, as the last time they were together was the day following V-J Day, which was Aug. 14.

Sailing from England, Feb. 19, she landed at New York Saturday morning aboard the Argentina. Residing in Manchester, England, Mrs. Borg before her marriage was Miss Bessie Dolman. She lived with her parents and one sister, Marie, and was employed in the engineering department of a factory there.

The couple was married July 7, 1945, in the St. Peter's church in Manchester. Mrs. Borg said she very much enjoyed her trip to this country, but would have to become accustomed to, what seems to her, the peculiar ways of the people here.

Carl Borg, a former corporal with the Air Service Command Ground Forces, received his discharge in December, 1945, following his return to the States from Europe. He entered the service in January, 1943, and went overseas in October of the same year. He was stationed in Warvington, England, during part of his service overseas.

Employed at the Marion Steam Shovel Co., Mr. Borg is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Claus Borg of Harpster. He and his British wife plan to make their home in Marion in the near future.

ROOKIE-RICH REDS HOPING FOR REPEAT

Cincy Prays 1938-40 Situation Will Hold True.

By The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla., March 7 — The Cincinnati Reds are hoping history will repeat itself

The Redlegs of 1946, still red-faced from their seventh-place showing last year, are in much the same position the team was before the 1938 season, after it had finished last in 1937, club officials believe

The 1937 club was ripped apart and a rebuilding process was started with young aggressive but unheralded players The team rose to fourth place in 1938, then went on to win the pennant the next year and the world's championship in 1940

The presence of many promising but unheralded rookies at the Reds training camp here makes club officials think of those pre-championship days

The first base job still is a wide open scramble with Eddie Shokes Bert Haas Charlie Kress, Hank Sauer and Ted Kluszewski all battling for the position. Sauer and Kluszewski also are in the running for outfield posts

Lonnie Frey who was the unanimous choice of all National league managers for a place on the All-Star team before he entered the service stands ready to hold down second base and Eddie Miller, star shortstop, is on tap

Manager Bill McKechnie says Rookie Grady Hatton Jr may be the club's regular third baseman even though he has never played pro ball

The Reds open their Grapefruit league season here Sunday with the Detroit Tigers

WALKER HOLDS OUT TOO LONG, LOSES JOB

Leo Says Rookie Has Dixie's Post Cinched.

By The Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH Fla March 7 — Dixie Walker veteran holdout of the Brooklyn Dodgers has stayed at home so long he has lost his job as regular right fielder to Gene Hermanski a strapping young fellow just out of the service declares the Dodgers' quiet-spoken manager Leo Durocher

I don't care if Dixie does sign his contract now Leo murmured, his dulcet tones shaking the dugout roof at this training camp here He can't play right-field on my ball club He can't beat Hermanski out now

Hermanski who might well figure in the first authentic instance of a robust but unknown young serviceman beating an established star out of his job, hit .300 for the Dodgers in 18 games in 1943 By coincidence that is exactly what Walker hit in 154 contests last year

Their respective ages are Walker 35, Hermanski 24

ASSORTED STOCKS LEAD SLOW ADVANCE

NEW YORK, March 7—Liquors, motors and aircrafts led a creeping recovery move in today's stock market.

The ticker tape frequently was at a standstill after a fairly active opening and the session turned into one of the most sluggish of the past six month. Gains of fractions to 3 points—there were wider jumps by isolated "thin" shares—predominated near the fourth hour.

Buying, brokers said, was based mainly on the idea that the list was due for a comeback after its sharp February slump.

Prominent on the upside were Hiram Walker, Schenley, National Distillers, Distillers Corp., Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Peoples Gas, Standard Gas $4 preferred, North American, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Shamrock Oil.
